

TIMES READERS SHARED SORROW OF DR. MARVIN

Many Wrote Advancing Theories Regarding Little Son's Dis- appearance.

Sympathy and commiseration go out from all parts of the country to Dr. Horace Marvin, the aggrieved and afflicted father of the baby, but few, if indeed any, city has been as much interested in the famous kidnapping case as Washington. The grief of the father is shared by hundreds and hundreds of readers of The Washington Times, who expressed their sorrow through their columns and advanced theory after theory as to what became of little Horace as well as his whereabouts.

A strange thing is the fact that the majority of those who wrote to The Times advancing theories said: "My belief is that neighbors of Dr. Marvin kidnapped the baby for mercenary motives and have murdered Horace because they realized they were likely to be hanged."

I spent twenty-four hours in Dr. Marvin's company. Throughout that time he talked of nothing else but the kidnapping of his child and the baby's fate.

"Jealous neighbors, who thought I was a millionaire, carried off my baby," said Dr. Marvin, as the tears rolled down his furrowed and careworn cheeks.

"Do you think your baby is alive?" I asked.

"No," he replied, choking down the sobs. "No; I believe they have done away with him in some manner. Perhaps they starved him to death. Maybe they strangled him on the head and crushed out his life. Only a demon could have done that, because the look in my baby's eyes would have paralyzed the arm of any human assassin. I am satisfied that they have killed him, but the sight of my boy's body, dead or alive, will end this agony and anguish."

Dr. Marvin was a stranger in Dover when the child was kidnapped. The sheriff gave him no assistance for twenty-four hours, and the citizens of the town paid no heed to his agonizing cries for pity, sympathy, and assistance. He was a wealthy man from the West, Delawareans knew nothing of him, and cared less.

There seems to be little or no question that little Horace was kidnapped for mercenary motives and that he was killed by the kidnappers. Though swathed in the somber mantle of death, little Horace is again with his father, and the immeasurable and incalculable strain on the aged man is ended.

Police Promise Murder Arrest In Hoenig Case

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 4.—With a drag net of a score of police officers surrounding the scene of the murder and a dozen sleuths running down outside clues, the police announced at midnight that an arrest would certainly be made before daybreak in the case of the murder of the little Hoenig child, whose body was found Thursday in a barrel in the rear of his father's shop.

Kidnaping Mother, Thought Drowned, With Her Father

CHICAGO, May 4.—Mrs. Alfred Terrill, wife of the manager of the Simmons Manufacturing Company, who was believed to have drowned with her two children, after kidnaping them in Kenosha, on Tuesday, is alive, and so are the children. Mrs. Terrill is staying in the vicinity of Ellis avenue and Forty-seventh street, and has paid a visit to her father, William T. Harkness.

CHICAGO JURY INDICTS MAYOR DUNNE'S OFFICERS

his official nose are expected to put a very pronounced dent in his political halo and have served as a shock, not only to his personal friends, but to the public in general.

Defeat Unearthed Iniquity.

According to the revelations made to the grand jury, a Democratic victory and the passing of the records of assessments into the hands of the victors would have headed off the present exposure. The defeat of Mayor Dunne and his associates, however, placed the evidence in the hands of the grand jury and revealed the mine of corruption and graft.

The statute of limitations prevented the grand jury from examining previous elections.

In addition to the indictments returned, the jury also criticized Chief Clerk Galpin, of the municipal court's, whose subordinate, John T. Lenhan, was recently indicted.

The indicted men will be tried during the summer term of court, which begins July 1. Collins, whose case will be heard first, tonight gave bond for his appearance on Monday.

Governor Folk After Grafters In Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 4.—Governor Folk, who before he became chief executive of the State prosecuted the hoodlums in St. Louis, announces his intention to come to Kansas City and personally investigate recent charges of police corruption.

The city police commissioners have decided to begin an investigation on Monday, and it is intimated that there will be a reorganization of the force that may include some of the higher officials. Governor Folk is not expected here until after the adjournment of the Legislature, a fortnight hence.

MARVIN BOY IS FOUND DEAD

almost three-quarters of a mile from the straw stack, where the boy was last seen. To have reached it, the little lad, who never walked 200 yards without sitting down to rest, would have been obliged to walk across rough ground in the face of an icy wind, cross a deep ditch, which is difficult for a grown person to cross, climb through two close barbed wire fences, and then have lain down to die in a spot where at the time the ground was either dry or covered with ice over not more than one inch of water.

But the condition of the boy's body points above all to the absolute conclusion that he has not been dead more than two weeks. The body is in an excellent state of preservation, an impossibility had he died two months ago, in view of the continuous warm weather when the thermometer registered 90 degrees for three successive days over one month ago.

Sheriff Believes Murder Theory.

The sheriff who took charge of the body when it was found refused to permit any examination of the body this afternoon, but expressed himself as convinced that the child had been murdered in some manner and his body brought back to the farm.

Tomorrow Coroner Joseph Galloway will hold an inquest and twelve of the leading citizens of Dover have been summoned to act as jurors, and they declare that there will be no whitewashing of the case. Two arrests are already being discussed in connection with the case, but the authorities, after a consultation this evening, decided not to act until after the inquest. There are many mysteries to be solved before the horror of the little boy's death is likely to be entirely made plain.

The body when discovered today was lying so plainly in view that it could scarcely be overlooked by a person 100 yards distant in any direction. The first work of the detectives is now being devoted to discovering the identity of the man who is supposed to have taken the body of the child from some hiding place in the dead of night and thrown it upon the spot where he felt certain it would be quickly discovered.

Father Carried Body to Shed.

The father of the boy carried the little body from the shallow pool to a shed, where a sheet was thrown over the child. He was amazed beyond words at the finding of the child in a spot which had been so completely searched and where he had been working the day before.

"My worst fears have been realized," said Dr. Marvin, the heart-broken father. "The finding of my poor little boy under these circumstances confirms all that I have believed concerning his fate from the very beginning. My boy was murdered. He most certainly had not been in the place where he was found but a very short time."

"Professional kidnappers never took my child, but some one took him. It was an amateur, a degenerate, or a man of weak mentality, who, believing that I had more money than I have, decided in almost a moment upon his act. I believe that his being found as he was today is the result of the great fear aroused in the mind of this man, or in the minds of those close to him, that he has prompted them to bring my boy and deposit his little body right on my farm, where we would find him."

Saw Nothing There Saturday.

"That any corpse could have come there in any natural way is quite evident. Chubby never wandered to that place alone, bundled up in his winter clothing. Why, I myself worked within a rod of the place a few days ago, and again on Saturday, and saw nothing, and yet directly after Mr. Pleasanton ran across my little fellow's body he purposely tried the experiment of going to a distance in different directions, and no matter where we stood the body could be seen and prominently for at least 300 yards. The tops of the reeds all about gave good evidence that they had formed part of the territory burned over by my neighbors, and by the detective the little fellow's clothing contained not the slightest mark of scorching."

"No one who was not here during the early days of the awful mystery which has ended so sadly for me and mine can possibly understand with what thoroughness that marsh was gone over and searched. My neighbors to the number of half a hundred in a human chain, hand-in-hand went over the whole of it and a body of a puppy could not have escaped their notice let alone that of a four-year-old child."

Fourth Anniversary of Birth.

Dr. Marvin had to stop to get control of himself at this point, and he tearfully recalled that today was the fourth anniversary of his favorite child's birth.

"I will never be satisfied," he went on, after a pause, "that my boy died a natural death. There is nothing in the appearance of my boy's body to indicate that he has been dead anything like the sixty-one days that have elapsed since he disappeared. To me it is plain that Chubby's death was not due to anything but a foul act, and if the corner's jury agrees with me, I believe I can still hope that the vengeance of God will be done."

In Memoriam

MURRAY—In remembrance of our devoted mother:
God, one year today
Called our mother from earth away
To land of bliss, to land of rest,
To land of eternal happiness.

Sometimes we speak of her so dear,
And feel her loving spirit near;
The voice which spoke to us so dear
We listen for but cannot hear.

As moments fly and days go by
We poor mortals vainly try to die,
But we thank God He has laid the way
Which makes this death so easy to pay.

Sleep on, dear mother, till the final day,
When all the mist has cleared away,
We'll meet you there, yes, one and all,
To help you crown Him Lord of All.

—By Her Children, Joseph, Edward, David, Bertha, Gertrude Murray.

April 28—Butler released.

May 4—Fourth anniversary of Horace Marvin's birth, and two months after he had been carried away.

FOUND DEAD ON A SPOT WHICH HAD BEEN GONE OVER DOZENS OF TIMES.

the law will be dealt to those who are responsible for the child's death."

Frank Butler, the farm hand, who was arrested, but subsequently released after charges had been brought against him of having run over the Marvin boy with a wagon and accidentally killing him, will probably be called upon to testify tomorrow before the coroner's inquest, which will be held at Dr. Marvin's home. Butler has remained in the vicinity of Dover since his release, and expressed a willingness to go before any tribunal that might desire to question him.

Detective F. T. Dimalo, who is engaged on the case, admitted today that he and his subordinates are following two lines of clues, and that arrests are to be expected at any hour.

Guard Is Placed Over Boy's Body; Detectives Busy

DOVER, Md., May 4.—State Detectives Harry I. Gillis and James L. Hawkins reached Dover at 9 o'clock tonight and had an hour's conference with Deputy Attorney General Satterfield, during which they were frequently in conversation with Attorney General Richards and Governor Lea. The State detectives agreed to put a guard over the body.

One of the most powerful evidences that the boy had not been lying exposed on the marsh for nine weeks is that buzzards, crows, hawks, and other voracious birds of the air. Although the little fellow's white neck, just turning color, was exposed where the tam-o'-shanter did not cover his throat, not a bird had touched him.

Superintendent Dimalo, of the Pinkerton agency, who has had the farm searched over and over again by competent detectives as well as farmers, was not here today when the body was found. He telephoned this evening that under no circumstances must the body be disturbed until he reaches it early tomorrow morning. This indicates that the Pinkertons will continue their investigation of the crime.

The attorney general, however, has stepped in with his State detective force and they will have to work in conjunction with the Delaware authorities.

"All we want now," said Captain Satterfield tonight, "is to see to it that nobody touches that body until our surgeons get it." Dr. Alfred Robin, bacteriologist, was added to the staff last night of medical specialists to conduct the post-mortem. Everything that is possible will be done to avoid any touching of the body.

Captain Satterfield will call out his Company B of the militia, should the occasion require it.

Finding of Body Excites People In Sioux City

SIoux CITY, Iowa, May 4.—The finding of the body of Horace Marvin probably caused a greater sensation in Sioux City than in any other place.

It was from here Dr. Marvin went two weeks before his son disappeared after a continuous residence here for twenty-nine years. He was admired by all his neighbors, and the recent death of little Horace's mother made the disappearance seem the more pathetic.

Whether the boy's body was recently taken back to the farm is being debated everywhere.
